Volume 36      Newsletter March, 2017      Issue 2

Our 36th Year of Bringing Woodworkers Together

The Next Meeting is 7 pm, Wednesday, March 29th, at the Al Bahr Temple, 5440 Kearney Mesa Rd. (behind the Hampton Inn)

March Program: Brian Lisus, The Art of Traditional Violin Making

Dell Cover, Program Chairman

We have an exceptional program for March from the world famous violin maker Brian Lisus. Brian has been making violins in South Africa for about 40 years, but just recently located to Southern California. Brian makes a traditional violin using traditional methods and materials. He compounds his own primers (stain) and varnish using materials similar to what would have been used hundreds of years ago. Besides making violins, he also gives classes in instrument building. Here is Brian's website if you want to preview his work and approach to music. It's one of the classiest websites I've ever experienced. www.lisusviolins.com

Hope to see you there, Del Cover

Bob Stevenson's Shop, April 29th

Dale Stauffer, Shop Tours Chairman

The tour will start at 9:00 am, coffee and donuts will be served. Bob Stevenson is well known to the membership as a past Design in Wood Coordinator, Palomar College instructor, Chairman of the Mentoring program and much more. He builds wonderful pieces, many on commission, from his shop. He has too many tools to mention, but, you might want to see his hand plane collection, among others.

~~~~~ President's Message, March, 2017

Mike Davis, President SDFWA

Well, we are in the month of March and not much is happening – WRONG!!! We actually have some big things happening this year.

First of all, last month we signed a lease for a space for the member shop. I hope you already saw the announcement of it. We now have a good sized space near I-805 and Miramar road. This is a two year project that is finally coming to fruition. There is still much work to be done to turn the space into a working shop, but, Pete Sterling, Tom Veatch, and others are spearheading that work and your help is needed so contact Pete at psterli1@san.rr.com if you can help with painting or building to get our shop ready for use. If you haven't signed up for membership in the shop yet, please do so. It will be a great place to either find that special tool you don't have or to just socialize while you work on your project.

To sign up for the shop you have to be a member of SDFWA. March is always a month where membership is somewhat down because of late renewals. If you haven't renewed your membership for 2017, please do so either on our web page, by mail, or at the meeting. Bryan Blacksher will be there to help you.

Planning for the 2017 County Fair and Design in Wood Show is well underway. Ed Gladney has been holding monthly meetings at his house, so if you would like to help, come to a meeting and volunteer. The fair also needs help with floor volunteers and people to work in the chair shop. No knowledge or skill is needed for the floor and very little for the chair shop. Just be willing to talk to patrons and share with them what SDFWA does. Volunteers can sign up on our website, www.sdfwa.org.

One of my favorite events throughout the year is the old tool swap meet. The next one in San Diego is coming up on April 2nd at the Rockler parking lot starting at 6 AM. Get there early for the best deals!

Dale Stauffer has set up a great shop tour for us this month at Deering Banjo. Due to space limitations, it is a little unusual, and we actually have three dates: March 7, 9, & 16. There are still openings on the 16th, so if you have any interest in musical instruments and want to see some of the techniques used in hand making these instruments; give Dale a call at 619-840-5684 or email him at ddstauffer77@gmail.com.

Finally, we have an exceptional speaker for our meeting this month. As you will see in Del's article here, it is Brian Lisus, violin maker. Brian recently produced a set of four instruments called the Quartet of Peace and made a wonderful video documenting the process. The background music was played on the four instruments he built. I think it will be a wonderful program for all.

So, we have a lot going on this March. Keep woodworking and check out our website for more news and events that are happening.

Member Shop Project

Gary Anderson,
Member Shop Chairman

We Have a Shop!

Valentine's Day took on special meaning this year as President Mike Davis, signed the lease for our New Member Shop!

The 3,000 square foot space is located at 5360 Eastgate Mall, Suite E, in San Diego...just east of I-805 and just north of Miramar Road. A perfect location as it is almost perfectly central to our existing membership base.

We have already painted the walls and moved in the first piece of equipment, a large CNC machine.

The architect has completed the plans to build-out the space and, by the time you read this, will have submitted them to "Plan Check." The electrician has already begun his work on running power to all of the locations we will need. We have hired a Contractor to build out a portion of the improvements and we will be asking for volunteers to help us finish that project. If you would like to assist, please call or email Tom Veatch tdveatch@gmail.com , 858-205-4789.

The accompanying diagram will give you a sense of what a great facility it's going to be; including a dedicated classroom, a lounge, library, storage area, and fully equipped tool room.

Simultaneously, we are working feverishly to finish the curriculum for both Shift Supervisor Training and Safety Training. Additionally, we are developing a schedule of classes, both skills based and project based that will be offered to all Shop Members.

Now that we are at this point, the number of things that have to be completed before we can open our doors is overwhelming. If you'd like to help, please let us know. Contact Tom, Pete Sterling, our Shop Director, psterli1@san.rr.com or me. We still need shop supervisors, instructors, and general labor to help with the framing, dry walling, painting, equipment set-up, and more.

I know everyone wants to know when it will open. The honest answer is "as soon as it's ready." Frankly, that depends upon two factors: permitting (the process can be brutal) and how much help we have. So if you can lend a hand, let us know.

We are posting photos of our progress on our Facebook page almost daily. Check it out!

If you have not yet signed up for a Membership, you can do so easily on the sdfwa.org web site. If you have signed up, we will be emailing you soon with more information on your membership, how it will work, etc.

As always, please let me hear from you if you have questions, suggestions or want to become part of the Shop Management Team!

Best Regards,

Gary Anderson

January 14th 2017 Shop Tour

Review, Article and photos by Adrian Larson, Editor

On January 14th, we met at Bayside Paints for a presentation by Vijay Velji and Paulie Corry on a series of finishing classes they are presenting at Bayside Paint. These classes came about when Paulie Corry learned of Vijay Velshi's new product: Royal-Lac post catalyzed shellac. A shellac based finish that cures fast and is as hard as other synthetic finishes.

At this point, a little background is called for. Vijay is a well-known member and sponsor of SDFWA. He has given presentations at our monthly meetings, entered DIW, won DIW awards, and supported our organization in many ways. Originally from Calcutta, where he first saw shellac used to finish his father's furniture. He is an electrical engineer by profession with a passion for shellac finishes on his woodwork, as well as a manufacturer of shellac based finishes.

Paulie Corry is a lifelong professional wood finisher originally from Liverpool England. It was there that he was apprenticed to Walter Willcocks Finishing, a prestigious company specializing in wood finishing. His apprenticeship was for five years, after which he worked an additional five years for the firm. Eventually, he came to the US, became a citizen, and since 1987, has run his wood finishing business in California. Among Paulie's accomplishments is the refinishing of the interior woodwork of San Diego's famous Whaley House. His experiences in Europe and America give him a unique and broad knowledge of wood finishing.

The third party to this joint venture is Gary Meinke of Bayside Paints, Inc. They are long time sponsors of SDFWA and sell a broad variety of high quality finishing products. They not only sell Vijay's shellac products, but they have also offered loft space in their building as a place to hold the finishing classes offered by Vijay and Paulie.

During their presentation, Paulie explained how he discovered Vijay's post catalyzed shellac six months ago, how much he loves it; and, how he contacted Vijay about it. Paulie is not a salesman for Vijay, he simply really likes his product. Vijay came up with the idea of holding the classes, and Gary offered the workspace.

The individual classes offered are on marbleizing, woodgraining, color washes, French polishing, gilding and other finishing topics. Paulie stated that if you took their classes, you would become able to contract work yourself. To learn of the classes being offered, contact Pauli Corry at PAULIECORY@GMAIL.COM and Vijay Velji at sales@shellacfinishes.biz.

tree in Longfellow's famous poem, The Village Blacksmith, ("Under a spreading chestnut tree....."), was actually a Horse chestnut; an entirely different genus.

In 1876, S. B. Parsons, a New York nurseryman, imported some Japanese chestnut trees and sold them as a popular, exotic garden tree. Luther Burbank planted a box of seeds from Japan in 1886 and soon had thousands growing in his California nursery. Some of these trees were infected with a fungus, Cryphonectria parasitica. Asian chestnut trees, especially the Chinese species, had evolved resistance to this pathogen but it rapidly kills the American species. Carried in rain water, by wind, and on birds or squirrels, the fungus quickly became established in North America.

This exceptionally lethal infection occurs when spores land on tree bark and enter through insect wounds. Spores germinate rapidly and create cankers which spread around the tree, eventually clogging the vessels which transport water to limbs and leaves.

Chestnut Blight was first recognized in 1904 by Hermann Merkel, forester at the New York Zoological Park (The Bronx Zoo today). By the next spring nearly every tree in the park was infected. Spreading at the rate of 24 miles per year, blight killed nearly four billion trees over the next 50 years. Chestnut roots are resistant to the fungus; allowing new shoots to grow from root systems or stumps, and survive for a while. But these saplings die before becoming mature enough to flower and produce nuts.

Some mature American chestnut trees still survive; a few dozen trees in Maine, where a healthy 95' tall tree was found in 2016; probably the largest specimen in the U.S. A small grove, descended from eight trees planted many years ago, grows on private land near West Salem, Wisconsin; originally saved because of its distance from the eastern forests. It was the largest remaining healthy stand of American chestnut trees until 1980, when it was found to be infected. Currently, about five thousand of the original West Salem trees survive in various states of health.

There are ongoing attempts to resurrect the American chestnut. Individual trees have both male and female blossoms, but cannot self-pollinate. To produce fruit, pollen from one tree must pollinate blossoms on another tree. This makes crossbreeding difficult and requires decades to produce results. Arthur Graves, a Yale trained botanist, began crossing surviving C. dentata trees with various Asian species in 1931; creating 250 different combinations over the next 30 years - without producing a satisfactory hybrid. A parallel program run by the USDA produced one healthy, 30 ft. tree by 1959 (the Clapper Tree). It became infected about 10 years later and died in 1976.

James Carpenter, of Salem, Ohio, found a huge, healthy American chestnut in a grove filled with dead and diseased trees in 1950. After failing to infect this tree with the fungus, he sent bud wood to plant breeder, Dr. Robert Dunstan, who grafted these scions onto chestnut rootstocks. They grew well and were crossed with USDA released Chinese chestnut species. Seedlings from the first cross began to bear in 1962. Trees with the best hybrid characteristics were crossed in repeated generations back to American and Chinese parent trees. The patented Dunstan Chestnut tree is advertised for sale online for $24.95 and is said to bear fruit in 2-4 years; producing 10-20 pounds of nuts in 10 years. There has been no independent verification of these results.

Although hybrid trees do not possess all the desirable qualities of American chestnuts, genetic engineering holds promise for restoring the American Chestnut, but the few genes responsible for resistance have been identified. By inserting genes from wheat, Asian chestnuts, grapes, peppers and other plants into American chestnut trees, William Powell from SUNY–ESF has created transgenic trees almost 100% genetically identical to the American chestnut, yet immune to C. parasitica. For more details, go to:

<https://phys.org/news/2016-01-genetically-american-chestnut-decimated-iconic.html>

In the 1930s, blight reached Europe. Years later, an Italian scientist found trees in Italy which seemed to show evidence of spontaneous recovery. In 1965, this observation led Jean Grente, a French agronomist, to identify a virus which attacks and kills the C. parasitica fungus. This process, called hypovirulence, protects trees. Sick trees, when infected with the virus-containing fungus, showed significant recovery. A similar virus, that arose naturally, was found in a small grove of chestnut trees in Rockford, Michigan in 1976. Sadly, genetic diversity in both the fungus and the virus renders hypovirulence ineffective in producing lasting, widespread resistance. An experiment deliberately inoculating trees with the virus in the West Salem, Wisconsin forest was unsuccessful.

Dire threats continue to endanger our forests. Closer to home, Sudden Oak Death (also present in Europe, origin uncertain, discovered in 1995) produces scenes like this in California.

In San Diego County and northern California, Pine Bark Beetle infestation has destroyed millions of acres of pine forest. This beetle is native to North America, but has flourished because of the long standing drought and warming climate.

A complete survey of Chestnut blight is available in Susan Freinkel's excellent book, American Chestnut, available at the public library. For a detailed list of tree pathogens, search "tree pathogens" at this site:
